Twitter set for soccer explosion

TECHNOLOGY If you thought Twitter was big now — with more than 190 million members and 65 million tweets sent daily — just wait until soccer-mad web users get a hold of it during the World Cup.

The people behind the popular social networking site are counting down the days to the start of the World Cup on Friday. They believe the massive sporting event will spur the most-significant flurry of online activity they've ever dealt with.

Big events typically take over the conversation on Twitter, the company said in a recent blog post. During this year's Super Bowl, almost half the tweets posted were about the big game, and that event gets much less international attention. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Lansdowne Park to cost city $173M

TIM WIECLAWSKI
tim.wieclawski@metronews.ca

The new Lansdowne Park, with a rebuilt stadium, public open space, underground parking and a new exhibition hall, is going to cost the city $172.8 million.

Now that all the elements of the Lansdowne Partnership Plan have been identified, city council has started to get a better look into the details surrounding the proposal.

City manager Kent Kirkpatrick gave an overview yesterday on how the retail component, the winning open space design submission, and the stadium will all fit together.

On June 17, city councilors will get a chance to grill the experts hired to consult on the proposal.

Members of the public will be able to make their presentations to council on June 24 and 25 before a decision is made on June 28.

Even after that point, there is still a chance the proposal could be cancelled by either the city or the Ottawa Sports and Entertainment Group, before construction starts next spring.

Kirkpatrick said there is a series of conditions and business issues on OSEG and the city that must be in place in order for the proposal to move forward. If one of them doesn't happen or is not waived, the agreement is over and both parties are responsible for their portion of the funds.

However, if either side decides to walk away for reasons of convenience, it would have to pay for the costs incurred by the other group as well.

Until construction begins, the project will only cost $12.75 million.

Once it begins, the city will have to pay $129.3 million to refurbish the stadium and the civic centre. The south side stands will be totally rebuilt.

The winning urban park design, minus the distinctive pedestrian bridge and man-made island in the Rideau Canal is expected to cost $46 million. City treasurer Marian Simulik said the city is budgeting $35 million for the public space since National Capital Commission, Parks Canada and OSEG are expected to pay for the rest.

Guergis helped peddle influence: Tory lawyer

POLITICS Information that former cabinet minister Helena Guergis was helping her husband peddle influence with the government was what clinched her ouster from the Conservative fold, the party's lawyer revealed yesterday.

Arthur Hamilton also told a Commons committee that a Toronto private eye was only one of a number of sources that helped put together the picture that forced Stephen Harper's hand on April 9.

Guergis herself turned out to be one of the sources of information, the lawyer added.

MPs on the government operations committee are studying allegations that her husband, former Tory MP Rahim Jaffer, had been illegally lobbying government officials and possibly influence peddling.

"Mr. Jaffer was creating the illusion that he was ultra-connected with the Conservative government and that he could make funds available and effectively open doors to potential investors," said Hamilton, a lawyer with Toronto firm Cassels Brock & Blackwell.

"Ms. Guergis assisted and amplified this aura of connectedness that Mr. Jaffer was presenting."

The Conflict of Interest and Ethics Commissioner confirmed yesterday that she would be investigating whether Guergis broke rules when she wrote a letter to a municipal politician on behalf of a local businessman.

Museum acquires Victoria Cross sets

The Canadian War Museum has acquired two Victoria Cross medal sets of outstanding significance to Canada's military history. The medals were earned during the First World War by Lionel B. Clarke and during the Second World War by John Mahony. Canada's highest award for bravery in the presence of the enemy, only 94 Victoria Crosses have been awarded to Canadians since the medal was instituted in 1856. Thirty-two are now held by the Canadian War Museum.

Pop exhibit set to assert itself

'Provocative' show highlights artists' mix of advertising, media

TRACEY TONG

After months of hype, the curtain is finally going up on a controversial exhibit at the National Gallery of Canada.

The exclusive North American engagement of Pop Life: Art in a Material World, which opens tomorrow, features more than 250 paintings, drawings, prints, sculptures, videos and installations from contemporary artists like Jeff Koons, Keith Haring, Damien Hirst, Martin Kippenberger, Maurizio Cattelan, Richard Prince and Takashi Murakami.

Some of the pieces, like Koons' Rabbit and Hirst's untitled performance art featuring a set of live identical twins will delight, while Andy Warhol's self-portrait will be instantly recognizable. Keith Haring's Pop Shop is the first commercial installation that the NGC has ever incorporated into an exhibition.

Others, like Koons' multi-part Made in Heaven, which includes explicit photographs and sculptures made with the collaboration of Italian porn star La Cicciolina (who he later married) and an untitled piece by Andrea Fraser chronicling her sexual encounter with a collector, have content warnings by the doorway.

"Intelligent, visually engaging and provocative, the exhibition Pop Life tells a story of how a recent generation of artists under the combined influence of pop art, conceptualism, the ready-made, and a healthy dose of do-it-yourself resolve have asserted themselves as powerbrokers in the art world," said Jonathan Shaughnessy, co-ordinating curator of the exhibition.

The exhibition, said Shaughnessy, all begins with Andy Warhol. One of the first pieces visitors will see in the exhibit is Warhol's celebrity portraits of Mick Jagger, Grace Jones and other artists.

The exhibit also looks at the artists who followed in Warhol's footsteps in exploiting advertising and the mass media to build their own brand.

"While these artists are household names to many Canadians, exhibitions of their work in this country have been rare," said NGC director Marc Mayer.

The exhibit runs through Sept. 19.

Naked Bike Ride's oil issue getting attention, says organizer

PROTEST People without clothes always draw a crowd, but organizers of the World Naked Bike Ride in Ottawa believe the recent oil spill in the Gulf of Mexico will bring even more people to Saturday's event.

"People are really concerned," said organizer and Ottawa ride founder Jenn Farr. "People are paying attention and realizing that it's going to affect everybody. This is just the latest

Global ride

• The event, which happens in over 70 cities worldwide, becomes more widespread every year "as people realize that oil isn't a sustainable way to structure our whole society," said Ottawa ride founder Jenn Farr.

example of how oil dependency ravages our planet." Farr expects more than 150 people to gather at Confederation Park Saturday afternoon, where they'll strip down to their skivvies, and in many cases, their birthday suits. Then at 3 p.m., they'll bike, rollerblade and skateboard around the city to protest oil dependency. The nudity symbolizes the vulnerability of cyclists on the road, said Farr.

The ride will pass major landmarks including the By-Ward Market, the Supreme Court of Canada and Parliament Hill. Everyone is welcome to participate with the "level of nudity they're comfortable with," Farr said.

"We've gotten gawkers," said Farr, "and you never know who's taking photos and where they're going to end up, so if you're not comfortable, don't go naked. Wear a wig, but just don't come in your street clothes. This is a party."

Proposed Lansdowne retail space OK: Report

STUDY The 340,000 square feet of retail or commercial space proposed in the Lansdowne Partnership Plan is viable and warranted, according to the third study to examine the issue.

Last August, the Glebe Business Improvement Area released a report from the Market Research Corporation that concluded that the "maximum capacity for additional supportable commercial space within the Glebe BIA, including Lansdowne Park, is recommended to be up to 36,200 square feet during the next three years."

However, that finding was countered by a report from Tate Economic Research for the Ottawa Sports and Entertainment Group that concluded the Glebe could not only support an extra 300,000 square feet of retail space, but other businesses may actually benefit from the increased traffic it would bring to the area.

A peer review by Malone Given Parsons sided with the Tate report, stating that "the MRC Report findings and conclusions cannot be relied upon with specific regard to market demand, opportunity, and support for the retail and commercial component of the Lansdowne Park redevelopment project."

Glebe BIA executive director Catherine Lindquist stood by the results of the MRC report. "We think he was very thorough," she said. "We still need to know what specifically (the retail space) is made up of. Size matters, but content matters too."

Unmasked: The secrets of autism

The secrets of autism were laid bare in a wide-ranging report yesterday.

The largest-ever attempt to compare the DNA of individuals with autism to people without the condition shows many rare genetic changes are involved in the development of the disease.

The scientists behind the effort, published online yesterday by the journal Nature, said the work identifies dozens of new genes involved in autism.

The pattern that emerges is that the genetic causes of autism are likely far more complex than scientists would have hoped.

And it dashes hopes that a small number of genetic changes might be responsible for the condition.

Senior investigator Steve Scherer, a leading genetics expert at Toronto's Hospital for Sick Children, said: "Our research findings point to the fact that genetic variations that we discovered are actually rare in frequency, meaning most individuals with autism are probably genetically quite unique, each having their own genetic form of autism."

He likened it to each individual having a genetic fingerprint for his or her own version of autism.

"Most individuals with autism are probably genetically quite unique."

Steve Scherer

The study involved 1,500 families in North America and Europe.

A welcome part of the findings relates to the fact the genetic changes appear to cluster along biological pathways, which helps to identify which neurological systems are being affected.

Researcher Tony Monaco said knowing the pathways should help develop drugs to treat autism

Tories in financing fight

ELECTIONS The Conservative party is attempting to use the courts to subvert the will of Parliament on campaign financing. Elections Canada will argue today in the Court of Appeal for Ontario.

The appeal in a Toronto courtroom by the independent elections watchdog signals an odd reversal of the old conservative complaint about judge-made law.

But it is perhaps befitting of a topsy-turvy court case in which the Conservative Party of Canada fought and won the right to return almost $600,000 in rebates to the federal treasury.

The legal appeal is one of two currently underway that pit the Tories against Elections Canada over interpretations of election financing law.

"There's a lot of gaming that goes on with the rules, and that's clearly what's happening," said Robert MacDermid, an expert in political financing who teaches at York University.

The rebate case revolves around the refunds that parties receive from Elections Canada for half of all campaign expenses, coupled with an additional Canada Revenue Agency rebate of half their GST payments.

'Torture' files rounded up in Afghan dragnet

The Canadian military has started collecting paperwork stashed inside metal shipping containers at Kandahar Airfield that could shed light on whether its commanders turned over detainees to Afghan authorities without weighing the risk of torture.

A military team of four has arrived at the base from Canada to complete the arduous task of retrieving thousands of highly sensitive documents that detail the transfer of detainees from Canadian custody.

"It's not a document hunt," said Lt.-Col. Shane Gifford. "We know where all the documents are. It's not looking for something that fell behind the chairs or something."

The files are the subject of intense controversy in Canada.

The Military Police Complaints Commission has asked the Department of National Defence to disclose all documents on detainees, including detainee transfer orders in Kandahar.

But the federal government says those files are beyond the commission's mandate.

Police quash fertilizer fears

G20 Toronto police say they have contacted a man who bought a large amount of a potential bomb-making fertilizer at a store not far from where the G20 summit will be held.

Police say the purchaser contacted officials after they released a sketch of the man to the public yesterday. They say ammonium nitrate has been recovered from two addresses in Toronto, and no charges are expected. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Tories beat the budget blues

POLITICS Stephen Harper's minority Conservatives have passed their fifth consecutive federal budget with the tacit support of the Liberal opposition.

The 2010 budget bill sailed through the Commons by a vote of 138-126, with 30 Liberal MPs absent to ensure the budget survived — along with the government.

NDP and Bloc Québécois members voted against.

The massive, 900-page piece of legislation now goes to the Senate where it may get a rougher ride.

"Oil is still flowing into the Gulf of Mexico, yet the Liberals helped the Conservatives adopt a budget bill that hands responsibility for environmental assessments to the industry-friendly National Energy Board," said NDP Leader Jack Layton.

Fibromyalgia

Reconnecting to What Matters

Fibromyalgia is characterized by widespread muscle pain, fatigue and multiple tender points, but some may also experience symptoms like sleep disturbances, morning stiffness, or headaches.

It's important to manage fibromyalgia so you can get back to the activities you enjoy. It's all about reconnecting you to what matters.

The Canadian Pain Coalition, The Chronic Pain Association of Canada, FM/CFS Canada and The National ME/FM Action Network invite you to an information session presented by Dr. Ellen Thompson, an anesthesiologist and chronic pain expert.

This session is intended to help patients, families and those who think they might have fibromyalgia to understand the condition, recognize possible symptoms and risk factors and talk to their doctor.

Kindly RSVP by phone, email or by visiting the website address below. Also, please feel free to leave a question you wish to have answered at the forum.

Scotiabank StartRight® helps newcomers feel at home

Manisha and Sudhir Bagde chose to come to Canada in spite of being told by a former neighbour from Mumbai that things weren't too encouraging here right now.

Their gung-ho attitude and positive thinking underlines every statement they make.

"We came here to provide a better future for our kids. I am convinced that we will make it in Canada," says Sudhir.

An architect trained with a Master's from JJ College of Architecture, Mumbai, Sudhir was Vice-President of a very well-known construction group. He researched job opportunities in Canada and had lined up a confirmed job in Halifax before moving.

"An agent responded to my online application; we had several discussions over the phone. After a few interviews with the HR people at the firm, I had my first job offer. Unfortunately, the project was shelved, but nobody's to blame for it," says an ever-positive Sudhir. "I gained interview opportunities and experience in the process. They say they will contact me when the project gets off the ground."

Manisha, with a Masters in Fine Arts also from JJ School of Arts, ran her own design studio in Mumbai. In Toronto, she is enjoying the weather. She feels absolutely at home and finds Canadians very welcoming.

"Right now both of us are looking for jobs, but things will fall into place soon," she says confidently.

Scotiabank StartRight® gives newcomers a headstart

Pankaj Mehra, Director India and South Asia Markets at Scotiabank, tells the Bagdes, "Water finds its own level. Your positive energy is bound to be reflected in every interaction of yours."

Manisha seizes the word positive. "Everyone here is so positive! We went to Scotiabank and we felt we were with people who cared and would help."

Sudhir had met a Scotiabank representative in Mumbai who told him about the Scotiabank StartRight® Program for newcomers to Canada and the bank's partnership with HDFC Bank in India.

"I said, 'Good idea!'" laughs Sudhir. "The banking formalities were all completed while I was in India. I had an account in Canada the day I landed." A minor glitch was soon ironed out. The Bagdes had opened a joint account, but Manisha stayed back in India for their daughter to complete her school exams and joined Sudhir a few weeks later.

"Pankaj helped me sort things out. Intesar Khan, the Branch Manager at the time at Highway 10 and Ray Lawson in Brampton, opened a new account for me that I could operate until Manisha joined me."

"Everyone at Scotiabank is so positive and helpful."

"Scotiabank is committed to helping newcomers to Canada settle in well," says Rania Llewellyn, Vice-President, Multicultural Banking. "Newcomers like the Bagdes are such an asset to the country."

The Bagdes admit to wondering how their new neighbours would be and if the kids would settle in. Happily, they have positive things to report on both fronts. Their daughter Kruti, 17, stayed in touch with friends in India by e-mail while exploring her new neighbourhood over the summer holidays. Their son Kalpak, 12, is immersed in books he brings home from the Mississauga Public Library.

Sudhir has now become a Certified Project Manager (PMP) and working towards LEED accreditation, while extensively networking with professionals in his area.

He recounts an amusing incident. "I had to fill out a form and a lady asked me to spell my name. BAGDE, I said. BADGE, she wrote."

"How's that for Canadian experience? Maybe this 'Badge' will improve my chances!"

Alberta pols prepare for Twitterverse

Here's one suggestion as Alberta government employees get ready for Twitter training to help them navigate the new social media: don't write tweets under the heading, "Stuff My Premier Says."

Because while the Internet might be awash in the candid ramblings of any number of curmudgeons, pundits or tweet-savvy sages, those who work for

"There is a big role for social media in communication and we want to take advantage of that ... (But) we're still government and there are issues to keep in mind."

Tom Olsen, director of new media and Internet

Premier Ed Stelmach will be expected to be, well, more discreet.

"There is a big role for social media in communication and we want to take advantage of that," said

Tom Olsen, director of new media and Internet for the Alberta government.

However, Olsen said it's important that guidelines be implemented showing workers how they should conduct themselves on the Internet.

"We're still government and there are issues to keep in mind ... Issues like privacy, issues like tone."

During Stelmach's leadership review, he promised to do a better job communicating with the public, including using social media sites.

Since then, several government Twitter and Facebook accounts as well as blogs have started up. Olsen said the government will train and appoint spokespeople who will represent government in social media. Policy documents state the government recognizes free speech but says employees cannot represent the government on their own personal sites.

Last year, Stelmach himself was the victim of mockery on the Twitter site of Stephen Carter, chief of staff for Wildrose Alliance Leader Danielle Smith.

Williams attacks 'greed' of Quebec

PROJECT Newfoundland Premier Danny Williams launched a blistering attack on Quebec yesterday, accusing the province of harming Canadians and the environment.

The cause of the Newfoundland premier's complaint was not new — he accuses Quebec of blocking development of the Lower Churchill hydroelectric project as well as past sins — but the locale and the vehemence of his attack took the dispute to a new level.

"The shock to me, as a provincial leader, is the sense of greed and arrogance and entitlement displayed by Quebec," Williams told about 500 people at a Canadian Club luncheon in Ottawa.

Newfoundland premiers have long complained that a mid-1960s financing agreement that made development of the Upper Churchill hydroelectric project possible is now transferring billions of dollars of wealth from what once was one of Canada's poorest provinces to Quebec. Now Williams says Quebec is unfairly blocking development of a Lower Churchill project by denying access to transmission lines only because it wants to diminish competition for Hydro-Quebec.

Hand-in-hand against oil disaster

In a grass-roots movement inspired by the 1980s Hands Across America human chain effort, beachgoers in 30 states and nearly a dozen countries plan to join hands this month to form symbolic barriers to protect the shoreline from oil spills. The Hands Across The Sand movement started in February in Florida, before the Deepwater Horizon oil rig disaster. On June 26, people will stand up and hold hands for 15 minutes to form human chains. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Making it up as they go along

Analysis shows BP's spill response contingency plan riddled with holes, errors

Professor Peter Lutz is listed in BP's 2009 response plan for a Gulf of Mexico oil spill as a wildlife expert. He died in 2005.

Under the heading "sensitive biological resources," the plan lists marine mammals including walrus, sea otters, sea lions and seals. None lives anywhere near the Gulf.

The names and phone numbers of several Texas A&M University marine life specialists are wrong. So are the numbers for marine mammal stranding network offices in Louisiana and Florida, which no longer exist.

BP's 582-page regional spill plan for the Gulf, and its 52-page, site-specific plan for the Deepwater Horizon rig are riddled with omissions and glaring errors, according to an Associated Press analysis that details how BP officials have been essentially making it up as they go along. The lengthy plans approved by the U.S. government last year before BP drilled its ill-fated well understate the dangers posed by an uncontrolled leak and overstate the company's preparedness.

"BP Exploration and Production Inc. has the capability to respond, to the maximum extent practicable, to a worst case discharge, or a substantial threat of such a discharge, resulting from the activities proposed in our Exploration Plan," the oil giant stated in its Deepwater Horizon plan.

Did the FBI unwittingly bankroll Peru murder?

The FBI thought it was closing in on Joran Van der Sloot in the notorious Natalee Holloway missing-teenager case, and he was paid $25,000 US in a sting operation. But when the agency delayed his arrest to help build a murder case, he took the money and headed for Peru, where authorities say he now has confessed to killing a different young woman.

The investigation of van der Sloot in the Alabama teenager's case simply was not far enough along to have had him arrested, the FBI and the U.S. attorney's office in Birmingham, Alabama, said yesterday.

U.S. Senate Judiciary Committee chairman Patrick Leahy sent a letter to FBI Director Robert Mueller and requested an explanation of "exactly what happened in this case and the basis for all actions taken by the FBI."

U.S. officials and a private investigator said the work on Holloway's disappearance was revived in April when van der Sloot reached out to someone close to Holloway's mother and requested $250,000 in exchange for disclosing the location of the young woman's body on the island of Aruba. He got $25,000, and the private investigator says he was taped saying he pushed her down, she hit her head, and she died. The statement from the FBI and U.S. attorney's office said the law enforcement probe "was not sufficiently developed to bring charges prior to the

Aruba authorities have been frustrated in their efforts to prosecute van der Sloot because they have been unable to find her remains. The U.S. officials said yesterday that Holloway's mother contacted authorities in Alabama, and the FBI set a sting operation in motion targeting van der Sloot. He has since been charged in Alabama with trying to extort money from the family. Van der Sloot was the last person seen with Holloway before she vanished during a high school graduation trip to the Dutch Caribbean island on May 30, 2005. He was arrested but has been released twice for lack of evidence.

He is being held in Peru in connection with the May 30 killing of 21-year-old Stephany Flores. Police said the two met playing poker at a casino.

Man allegedly held daughter, fathered 7 children with her

BRAZIL A man in a remote fishing village kept his daughter imprisoned for 12 years, raped her repeatedly and had seven children with her, police said yesterday.

The man is also accused of abusing a young girl he had with his daughter.

Police allege that Jose Agostinho Pereira, 54, kept his daughter, now 28, under virtual house arrest in a two-room, thatched-roof hut near a tiny fishing village in northeastern Brazil.

An officer who aided in the arrest said the home was located in such a remote, jungle area that the only way to reach it was by using canoes. Authorities said the children appeared to suffer from malnutrition and could barely communicate with others. Most were unclothed.

The alleged abuse began when Pereira's wife left him in 1998, said police in-

While the exact ages of the children — four girls and three boys — were not known as none of their births were registered, police believe they range in age from two months to 12. "None of them were allowed to leave the house. None can read, they can barely communicate with other people," said Paiva.

It was last year in Austria that Josef Fritzl was found guilty of locking his daughter in a dungeon for 24 years and fathering seven children with her.

Governments should pressure China: Google

Google Inc.'s top lawyer said yesterday that the world's leading search engine is asking the U.S. and European governments to press China to lift Internet censorship, describing it as an unfair barrier to free trade.

David Drummond told reporters that western states should defend the free trade in information with the same kind of rules that they use to complain of China's below-cost sale of products.

He said government talks are "the only way that it's going to change, that this tide of censorship or this rising censorship is going to be arrested."

The company sparred with Chinese leaders earlier this year when it stopped self-censoring its search results in line with Chinese rules after it said Chinese hackers had tried to plunder its software coding and hijack the Gmail accounts of human rights activists.

Since late March, Google has been redirecting search requests from mainland China to Hong Kong, which doesn't have the same restrictions.

"The cyber attack was sort of the final straw because we felt that it was increasingly hard to do business there in accordance with our values," Drummond said, describing the company as in danger of becoming "part of the same apparatus" of Chinese state censorship.

"Censorship, in addition to being a human rights problem, is a trade barrier," he said.

News in brief

LANGUAGE LAW Starting this fall, the spouse of a citizen who is coming from outside the European Union and wants to live in Britain will have to prove he or she has a basic command of English. The move, announced yesterday by the new Conservative government of Prime Minister David Cameron, comes as countries across Europe tighten their rules on immigration amid rising unemployment rates and concerns about the ability of newcomers to integrate. The government is casting the new policy as an effort to promote integration — not to keep out foreigners. But the new measures have been criticized by civil libertarians, lawyers and activists.

Friendship underrated

Relating

metronews.ca/collins

Friendship gets less glory and attention than other relationships. It's too easy, too steady and self-supporting. Maybe it works too well to be taken seriously.

The "friend zone" is shorthand for the second-rate vortex for where love affairs lacking mutuality or sexual chemistry go to die.

Male friendship in particular is sold short. It's entirely expected for you to say you love your kids, your country, friggin' hockey, but say that you love your buddy and an adolescent snickering can still be heard (this would also be the response of many of my dearest friends to such a declaration, so fair is fair.)

The bond with a friend, which Ralph Waldo Emerson lauded both as "one before whom I may think aloud" and one with whom "you can afford to be stupid," is often trivialized with awful words like "bromance." "I love you" must be followed by the neutralizing "man," and ideally shouldn't be delivered before the third round of drinks.

There's none of this pussyfooting in Christopher Hitchens' new memoir, Hitch 22, excerpted in this month's Vanity Fair, which contains warm, funny words about his decades of friendship with Martin Amis, who himself says, "My friendship with the Hitch has always been perfectly cloudless. It is a love whose month is ever May."

No bromance this, though the magazine, perhaps embarrassed, sells it on the cover with the glib, juvenile cover line, "Hitchens (hearts) Martin Amis."

I've always been lucky with my friendships. Their quantity, quality and duration outstrip my due, not the least because I'm pretty rotten at keeping in touch. My emails are slow but sincere. My silences are unforgivably long.

But every reunion has a way of erasing the months or years that have passed. We pick up where we left off because we never really left off, and we can now burn each other all the better over retreating hair and spawning chins. (This ball-breaking is the beautiful thing they try to recreate, usually so horribly, with celebrity roasts. When real friends do it, it's actually stingingly funny.)

In June, as the summer's short supply of weekends begins to disappear into various commitments, I become, through the cruel limitations of time, an even less worthy, more diluted friend.

Visits with those whose schedules are the tightest, one stranded for long stretches in New Zealand, another serving in Afghanistan, get priority for practical reasons, but the triage is always insufficient. I'm always going to miss good times with my favourite people, and there's nothing to say about it but I love you (man.)

Steve Collins offers his best guesses on relationships for Metro every two weeks.

Open letter to women of Sex and the City

FourthWave

Canice Leung

metronews.ca/fourthwave

Dear Carrie, Samantha, Miranda and Charlotte,

We fell out of touch for a few years, shortly before Sex and the City bit the dust in 2004. We all got pretty busy — I know people can change in six years, but it's like I don't even know you anymore ... Flying off to Abu Dhabi, joking about Lawrence of my Labia, drunkenly karaoke singing "I Am Woman," and meeting locals who throw off their black abayas to reveal fabulous designer gowns underneath.

Really? In parts of the UAE, it's legal for men to beat their wives, and women have been charged with illegal sex after reporting rape! Being Woman in Abu Dhabi is no all-expenses paid trip for the average gal.

You aren't the self-assured, sometimes neurotic, sharp-tongued, emotionally sensitive New Yorkers I once knew. You've turned into a four-headed beast that spews crass stereotypes and it's time for an intervention.

I want you to remember who you once were; I want the old Carrie, Samantha, Miranda and Charlotte back.

You're collectively the

Sarah Jessica Parker, a.k.a. Carrie

Freudian four-way dissection of the modern, Western woman — the romantic, the nymph, the workaholic, and the insecure ditz — which is what endears you to all of us. You are us.

The show's not without problems; you live in demographically monochromatic upper class Manhattan, and your problems (men, where to have drinks, the lineup for weekend brunch) are definitely first world.

It's not feminist, but it has surprised me. Consider the era that ushered you in: The show launched alongside the careers of underage, over-sexed pop starlets. While Dubya was waging his abstinence-only education program, you were crude but frank about the realities of female sexuality, aging, workaholicism and the concept of beauty.

Sure, all of you at one point or another slept with the wrong guy, or forgot to use protection, but there were never recriminations that any of you were slutty, flawed, or bad. Seen in the context of its time, SATC was groundbreaking.

Like muscle cars, explosions, Clint Eastwood and Steve McQueen are to men, your world was ours to escape to, 40 minutes at a time. Can't we just go back to all that? I miss you girls, I really do.

Yours always,
Canice

Because Internet dating sites offer slim pickings

An Ohio woman spent three days in jail for calling the police emergency line five times seeking a husband.

The dispatcher was flabbergasted by the requests and asked Audrey Scott, of Alliance, "You need to get a husband?"

The 57-year-old Scott responded, "Yes."

Told she could face arrest for misusing the emergency call line, Scott responded, "Let's do it."

Scott was convicted last week of improper use of the emergency system and was sentenced to the three days in jail, which she had already served since her arrest, according to The Review newspaper.

Seven other days were suspended if she stays out of trouble for a year.

After her release, Scott blamed the case on alcohol. There is no phone listing for Scott, who could not be reached for additional comment yesterday.

Oil output set to skyrocket

Canadian crude oil production will jump more than 50 per cent in the next 15 years, driven by expansion in the Alberta oilsands, according to a report released yesterday.

The Canadian Association of Petroleum Producers (CAPP) predicted that total crude oil production will grow from 2.8 million barrels a day this year to 4.3 million barrels a day by 2025.

This growth will be led by the oilsands, which will contribute 3.5 million barrels a day or 81 per cent of total crude production by 2025, compared to 1.5 million barrels a day or 54 per cent of total production this year.

"A stabilizing invest-

Conference Board predicts lower profits

ECONOMY Canadian companies saw their profitability outlook weaken in May after a strong post-recession recovery, and will likely see a modest drop in the second half of this year, according to the Conference

Board of Canada.

A leading indicator that tracks profits across Canada's various industries fell 0.4 percentage points from April, the second month in a row it has registered such a drop, the Ottawa-based think-tank said yesterday.

"The decline suggests that after experiencing a strong post-recession recovery, corporate profitability will weaken modestly in the second half of the year, as interest rates rise," the Conference Board said in a statement. "The outlook for most industries remains positive, but their rates of profit growth are expected to slow." THE CANADIAN PRESS

Complaints against financial sector spike

CONSUMERS More complaints were filed by consumers against Canada's financial industry last year than ever recorded before, the Ombudsman for Banking Services and Investments reports.

The national dispute resolution service says it opened 900 cases in 2009, a 48 per cent increase over the previous year.

That's more than triple the number of cases filed over the last three years, the ombudsman says.

He notes that recently more filings have been made against the investment industry, instead of the banks, driven partly by the global economic downturn, which ravaged stock markets.

The ombudsman's office can investigate complaints from clients of financial institutions, including banks, investment dealers, trust companies, mutual fund dealers, credit unions and scholarship trust plans.

Its services are free to consumers, and it can recommend compensation in amounts up to $350,000.

South Africa's time to shine

As World Cup arrives, nation revels in road from conflict to celebration

Soccer's stars have converged on South Africa from across the globe, but on the eve of the World Cup, it is the host nation — with all its flaws and all its wonders — that has seized the spotlight.

Crime is rampant, in shantytowns and posh suburbs. An HIV-AIDS epidemic rages. Yet the welcome for the world — from Cape Town to Soweto — couldn't be warmer, or more proud.

Blaring their plastic trumpets, or "vuvuzelas," and displaying their multi-coloured flag on their cars and their homes and themselves, South Africans are embracing this historic moment. It's by far their boldest foray onto the world stage since Nelson Mandela formally ended the apartheid era by winning the presidency in 1994.

"It has unified all South Africa," said Irvin Khoza, chairman of the local organizing committee. "It doesn't matter if you're black or white, or if you're close to the sport or not. Everybody in this country is wearing the flag."

The four-week, 32-team tournament opens tomorrow with South Africa's national squad — a long shot to bookmakers but a favourite to adoring local fans who call it Bafana Bafana — taking on Mexico at Soccer City, the 94,700-seat stadium rising amid old gold mines between Johannesburg and Soweto.

It will be the first time the world's most-watched sporting event is held anywhere in Africa, where soccer fever runs deep, and it takes place in a country that for decades was an international sports outcast, boycotted because of its racist policies.

Brazil and Spain are the favourites to win the title. Other popular teams, according to a worldwide survey released this week by Nielsen Media Research, include former champions Argentina, England and Germany — along with the United States, which was picked to win by 46 per cent of North Americans.

Even enigmatic North Korea is here, its unheralded and long shot team qualifying for a World Cup for the first time since 1966 amid a flare-up of tension with its neighbour and fellow tournament entry, South Korea.

A few top stars are absent due to injury, but England's Wayne Rooney is here, as is Portugal's Cristiano Ronaldo. Argentina has arguably the world's best player, Lionel Messi, and the most flamboyant coach, Diego Maradona.

Estimates vary as to how many foreign visitors will come — perhaps 350,000 or 400,000. When ticket sales lagged last month, organizers made more of them available to South Africans, and now nearly all have been purchased.

The pervasive mood seems to be exhilaration. Under a canopy of helium balloons, a euphoric, multiracial crowd greeted the mostly black national team yesterday when it appeared in Sandton — the heart of Johannesburg's privileged white suburbs.

Young South Africans are thrilled. Their elders share the excitement, with extra perspective.

Simon (Ox) Malhangu, who played pro soccer in the 1970s with the Soweto-based Moroka Swallows, was among many world-class stars who never got to play official international matches for his country because of a sports boycott imposed to protest apartheid.

"To be honest with you, we never thought we'd host such a tournament of this magnitude in our lifetime," Malhangu, 58, said in a telephone interview. "We're counting ourselves lucky, as people now approaching their 60s, to be hosting such a great event."

Coaches plan different paths to Cup glory

From dour Dunga to the downright eccentric Diego Maradona, the leading coaches at the World Cup are plotting different ways to win the title.

Brazil coach Dunga has upset millions of his countrymen by leaving big stars such as Ronaldinho, Alexandre Pato and Adriano out of a squad he believes needs stability to win a sixth World Cup.

One of the game's all-time greats as a player, Maradona has stunned the soccer world by ignoring hugely experienced defenders Javier Zanetti and Esteban Cambiasso, who showed their top form by helping Inter Milan win the Champions League.

England's Fabio Capello has a technique to get these millionaire stars to do what he wants, to behave smartly and respectfully even at their team hotel where cellphones and flip-flops are banned in public and the players dine together as a team.

"Capello instils fear, like a severe dad," England striker Wayne Rooney said of the team's head coach. "He has explained to us how to do everything. He has made us more of a squad. He has worked above all on the tactics, now we can change them every match."

FIFA World Cup

Portugal counting on Ronaldo goals

The World Cup provides a global showcase for soccer's greatest forwards, and if Cristiano Ronaldo wants to reach the status of Pele and Diego Maradona, he must do something he hasn't done for 16 months — score a goal for Portugal.

The tournament in South Africa needs stars like Ronaldo and Argentina's Lionel Messi to produce their skills on the sport's biggest stage, to thrill the billions of spectators watching games on television worldwide.

That means FIFA's 2008 world player of the year will have to break a goal drought stretching back to a friendly game in February 2009, when he scored from the penalty spot against Finland.

In competitive matches, he has not found the net for Portugal since the 2008 European Championship.

"It's not a problem," the Real Madrid player said before the tournament. "I'm saving myself for the World Cup."

The time to deliver on that promise has come as Portugal readies for its June 15 opener against Ivory Coast.

Ronaldo has the ability to set a game alight, which is why Real Madrid paid Manchester United $118 million US for him a year ago.

The Portuguese forward's electrifying bursts of pace, his spellbinding footwork and blistering right-foot shots — which Manchester United fans nicknamed "Ronny rockets" — have brought crowds to their feet at Old Trafford and the Santiago Bernabeu stadium.

Injuries, though, have unsettled Ronaldo's international career. He played in just seven of Portugal's 12 World Cup qualifying matches and, in some games, was still recovering from injury.

In 73 appearances since his 2003 debut, Ronaldo has scored 22 goals.

Still, Portuguese fans grumble that his inability to reproduce his club form at international level is partly to blame for Portugal's recent below-par performances.

Where to catch World Cup action

TIM WIECLAWSKI
Metro Ottawa

BARS Thanks to the province's liquor control board, soccer fans in Ontario will be able to enjoy a frosty brew as they watch early-morning World Cup matches, but an open sports bar may be a little tough to find.

Since host nation South Africa is six hours ahead of Ontario, most of the World Cup matches will be played at either 7 or 10 a.m. ET.

To accommodate soccer fans, the Alcohol and Gaming Commission of Ontario recently decided bars can begin serving alcohol at 10 a.m. instead of 11 a.m. during the tournament, which runs from June 11 to July 11.

For most of the year in Ottawa, any establishment that calls itself a sports bar actually means it's a good place to watch hockey. It may also show the Grey Cup and Super Bowl as soon as the Columbus vs. Carolina hockey game is over.

But there are places in Ottawa that specialize in soccer, like the Georgetown Pub at 1159 Bank St., which bills itself as the top soccer pub in the city.

Along with its classic sports bar atmosphere, the Georgetown features 13 TVs, including two large projection screens and seven 42-inch plasma screens.

With six locations in Ottawa, Local Heroes is one of the go-to spots for big sporting events. Each bar boasts dozens of TV screens, meaning people won't miss a moment of the action, even during a bathroom break.

The Red Mile may be shut down for the season, but it may become the "Milla Roja" if fans of the Spanish team, pre-tournament favourites, pack the Sir John A. pub on Elgin Street.

"We'll be joining full bore," said manager and co-owner Peter Abraham. "We're going to have our TV screen out on the patio and flags coming in. We'll be out in full force here."

If Elgin Street is the Red Mile, then Preston Street will be the Blue Mile in support of the defending World Cup champion Italians, said Preston Street BIA executive director Lori Mellor.

The Prescott, The Heart and Crown, Pub Italia and other venues will be packed when "The Azzurri" play, but will also be great locations to catch all the action.

In the Market, Pub 101 will also be opening early just for soccer fans.

When it comes to watching football while you eat breakfast, Busters Bar & Grill in the Lincoln Fields Mall serves up heaping mounds of bacon, sausage and eggs with a TV screen readily accessible.

Kane's OT goal gives Blackhawks their first Stanley Cup since 1961

(Chicago wins series 4-2)

Blackhawks 4 Flyers 3 (OT)

There was no red light, just Blackhawks flying over the boards in celebration.

Sticks and helmets were thrown, scattered all over the ice and still no signal for a goal.

After a brief review, there was no dispute — the Chicago Blackhawks were the Stanley Cup champions.

Patrick Kane sneaked the puck past Michael Leighton 4:10 into overtime and stunned Philadelphia to lift the Blackhawks to a 4-3 overtime win in Game 6 last night for their first championship since 1961.

No one but the Blackhawks appeared to know what was going on for a few frozen moments. Kane and his linemates seemed the only players on the ice who knew the puck found the side of the net. The goal light never went on, but that didn't stop most of the Blackhawks from storming the ice and mobbing each other in celebration.

The review was a short one and Kane will go down as scoring one of the biggest winners in team history.

Team captain Jonathan Toews was awarded the Conn Smythe Trophy as playoff MVP.

The Blackhawks completed their revival from the bottom of the NHL to holding the silver trophy on the strength of rising stars Kane and Toews.

Annti Niemi was solid in goal to help the Blackhawks wrap up their most successful season since Bobby Hull and Stan Mikita led the way 49 years ago.

It ends the longest active championship drought in the NHL.

The Flyers are still looking for their first Stanley Cup title since 1975.

Celtics' Pierce, Allen hope to shake off ugly performances

Lakers lead series 2-1

Lakers at Celtics

NBA The Boston Celtics watched the misery unfold again, a poor performance that was tough to take the first time around.

As video played of Tuesday's 91-84 loss to the Los Angeles Lakers, Tony Allen noticed another audience member, Paul Pierce, wasn't enjoying himself.

"He seemed pretty upset today in the film session,"

Allen said yesterday.

"I just saw his gestures. It kind of looked like he felt he could do more."

Pierce certainly has plenty of room for improvement in Game 4 of the NBA finals tonight.

He made just four shots before tossing in a meaningless layup with 5.1 seconds left and finished with 15 points, two rebounds and two assists.

In Game 2, the Celtics won 103-94 in spite of him as he missed nine of 11 shots and scored just 10 points after leading the team in the regular season with an 18.3 average.

"I'm going to probably have to do more if we're going to win."

Paul Pierce

The MVP of the 2008 finals ran into foul trouble on Tuesday, reducing his aggressiveness. Rarely did he drive to the basket, a skill that usually gets him a layup or two free throws. At the video session, Pierce told coach Doc Rivers why.

"It's funny," Rivers said. "I said, 'Paul, that's a driving lane. You've got to get to the basket.' His response was, 'I was worried about getting another foul.' It's tough to play that way."

The futility spotlight focused on Ray Allen, who missed all 13 of his shots and finished with two points Tuesday. But he and Pierce got off to equally poor starts, both missing all five of their shots in the first quarter.

"They had an outstretched arm in front of my ball all night," Allen said.

"I just move forward and just focus on getting good rest today and being ready for tomorrow."

For Pierce, being ready means avoiding foul trouble so he can get into an offensive flow.

On Tuesday, he went to the bench with two fouls with 2:10 left in the first quarter. After picking up his fifth foul with 11:21 to go in the game, he spent the next 3:06 on the bench.

"When I go out there and I'm in foul trouble, it's difficult, which was the case in Game 3," Pierce said.

"I can do more if (the Celtics) need me to do more. Obviously, I'm going to probably have to do more if we're going to win."

Sports in brief

NFL The NFL Players Association filed a complaint yesterday claiming the league deprived players of potential revenue when it re-negotiated its contracts with television networks. The complaint alleges the NFL structured the contracts so it would be guaranteed money even if there is a lockout in 2011 — while not maximizing revenue from other seasons when the league would have to share that income with players.

ESPN A former ESPN production assistant whose affair with broadcaster Steve Phillips led to their firings has filed a lawsuit against the sports network saying it defamed her. The lawsuit by 23-year-old Brooke Hundley, filed Tuesday in Stamford Superior Court, says ESPN defamed her by firing her based on false statements by Phillips and by claiming she had not fully co-operated with its investigation.

NHL The Phoenix Coyotes say they have re-signed left-wing Scottie Upshall to a one-year contract. Terms of the contract were not disclosed yesterday. The 26-year-old Upshall had a career-high 18 goals and 14 assists in 49 games for Phoenix before sustaining a season-ending knee injury on Jan. 28 against Calgary.

Strasburg-mania heads to Cleveland

Strasburg-mania has hit the road.

With rookie sensation Stephen Strasburg set to make his second major league start in Cleveland, the Indians, ranked last overall in attendance, sold more than 3,000 tickets yesterday for Sunday's game against the 21-year-old, who struck out 14 in his dazzling debut.

The Washington Nationals confirmed Strasburg will start Sunday at Progressive Field. On Tuesday, he dominated the Pittsburgh Pirates for seven innings in a 5-2 win before a standing-room-only crowd of 40,315 in the U.S. capital.

His appearance is giving a much-needed attendance bump to the Indians, who are in last place in the AL Central and are only averaging 15,527 fans at home games.

The team has sold 4,300 tickets since last week, when it appeared Strasburg would face Cleveland in his second game.

Wearing an Elvis wig, Washington Nationals pitcher Stephen Strasburg is covered in shaving cream Tuesday night after the Nationals defeated the Pittsburgh Pirates 5-2 in Strasburg's major league debut. Strasburg struck out 14 and picked up the win.

Strasburg's stop in Cleveland is expected to draw the Indians' second-largest crowd this season.

The Indians, who once had 455 consecutive home sellouts, were only sold out on opening day this season.

Their second-biggest crowd was 25,531 in the 43,000-seat ballpark.

"It's creating a fan buzz around baseball," Indians spokesman Bob DiBascio said, adding the team will provide a further update on ticket sales later.

"It's something we're excited about, to be able to play host to the young man's first road start."

Tread carefully when going with a distinctive retro style

Going retro has never been easier. Whether you love '50s space-age style, '20s art deco or design from any bygone era, vintage furniture and home accessories are everywhere today.

Flea markets and antiques shops are stocked with vintage treasures or trash, depending on your perspective. Yard sale season is in full swing, bringing Naugahyde recliners and vintage Tupperware into the daylight after decades of slumber in attics and garages. And at a slew of websites, from niche marketers to the catchall that is eBay, you can find real vintage pieces and endless reproductions.

But while it's simple to get your hands on decor from the past, it's more complicated to use it well.

"Doing retro right is all about balance," says designer Brian Patrick Flynn, founder of decorademon.com. "If you do everything from the same period, your space can become cliché or kitsch. What you mix retro with is what makes the space unique and updated."

We asked Flynn and L.A.-based interior designer Betsy Burnham for their favourite retro decorating techniques.

LESS REALLY IS MORE

"If you're really into the '50s, don't do the Formica table, and the jukebox, and an old radio, and five other things," Burnham says. Instead, choose just one or two evocative pieces. "Not only is it more tasteful, but I think it's more effective."

For a client who collects toys and action figures from the '80s, Burnham designed built-in shelves and suggested displaying only part of the collection at one time. "We found a way to have it enhance the space, and not have the space dictated by it," she says.

LIGHT THE WAY

Beyond buying furniture from a given era, you can infuse your home with vintage flair or temper retro furnishings with contemporary style through strategic use of light, pattern, colour and texture.

"George Nelson pendants are probably the most iconic form of mid-century pendant lighting, and they mix well with virtually anything," Flynn says. "Table lamps, especially chrome and ball 1970s style, add a nice element of postmodern sexiness to any room."

RESPECT THE ARCHITECTURE

These designers agree that while your home's interior design doesn't have to evoke the same era as the exterior, there should be some connection.

"One of my rules is to really understand the architecture and give that value, and take it inside with the interior design," Burnham says. "But you don't have to be literal. My house was built in 1927, and obviously I don't want to have a Victorian interior. I keep it classic, with a twist."

Take steps now to end stop that leak

HomeScape

Sylvia Putz

metronews.ca/homescape

Water trickling into your basement through walls or up through the floor — while it's never good — may not be the kiss of death that you fear.

In fact, most home owners will experience, at some time or another, water leaking into their basements. If the leaking problem is severe or chronic, you should definitely contact a reputable expert. But if leaking is intermittent and not too severe, perhaps occurring only when it rains heavily, it's worthwhile investigating the cause of the problem because the solution may be simpler and less expensive than you think.

Some tips:

- Make sure all surfaces (soil, driveway, patio) adjacent to the foundation slope away from your house.
- Re-seal.
- Repair any obvious cracks or breeches visible in the foundation.
- Make sure downspouts discharge at least 10 feet from your foundations.
- If a neighbour's downspout is the cause of water near your foundation, talk to them about relocating the flow-out of their downspout.

Sylvia Putz is a journalist with an interest in decor and design. She's written for the TV show Arresting Design; sputz@arrestingdesign.com.

Mix up some colour coordination this summer by bringing a dose of the outside inside.

Sky blues, grassy greens and sunshine yellows — this is the time to go bold with colour, whether straight up, or in pretty patterns or flirty florals.

Sebastien Fauteux, general merchandising manager for Urban Barn, said it's easy to freshen up an interior for summer.

"A pop of colour really goes a long way," said Fauteux, in town recently from Vancouver. "Don't be scared. Painting a wall can be overwhelming, but you don't have to go that far."

Make an impactful statement through accents such as bright vases filled with tulips and daffodils, or vibrantly coloured placemats and other heavenly hued meal-time accessories to jazz up your table. Toss cushions on a neutral couch add colour quickly and effortlessly.

"Either go with one (colour) story to keep the same trend throughout, (or) go with a multi-colour palette, but you need to stay in the same tone," said Fauteux, citing the pastel family for example.

He said iconic items shrouded in whimsy are popular this season, such as the colourful Buddhas at Urban Barn. Alongside religious connotations, the smiling statues give off a joyous vibe.

"The summertime is the time to make (a space) a bit more fun and playful," says Fauteux. "You can spice (your home) up without having to spend a fortune."

Cork both stylish and sustainable

Crafting websites have hundreds of clever ideas for repurposing wine corks, from turning them into picture frames to making ornaments to using them as knife cleaners or storage receptacles.

And the professional design world has discovered cork as well. There are beautiful examples to be found in furniture and home accessories.

Cork is the outer bark of the cork oak tree, found in the Mediterranean and, in particular, Portugal, where more than half the world's cork comes from. The trees are a remarkable renewable resource; the bark can be harvested every nine or 10 years for the life of the tree — most live to about 200. A tree in its prime, at 80 years old, can yield 200 kilograms of cork. That's enough raw material to produce about 25,000 natural wine corks.

Cork is durable, lightweight, naturally insulating, fire and rot resistant, and has a soft, pliable quality. It can be shaved thin enough to be used as a fabric for anything from handbags to upholstery. In thicker forms, or layered over other materials, cork makes great furniture and building materials.

Philadelphia-based designer Michael Iannone uses the material artistically in a collection of striking sideboards. Geometric and nature motifs are coaxed out of differently coloured and textured cork.

"As a green furniture designer, I'm always looking for new materials to expand the range of sustainable materials that are available," Iannone says. "We've always incorporated graphics into our furniture line — cork fits the bill as a green material, and gives me a wide range of colours and finishes to create graphics with."

Vitra's smart stools appear at first glance to be wine corks for enormous bottles. They're light and portable, and would complement any decor.

MOMA's design store now features "Destination: Portugal," an exhibit of goods from that country's best designers. There are cork umbrellas, envelopes and stylish tableware.

Ferm Living has a charming set of cork placemats painted with a simple branch design, and a clever trivet fashioned out of little cork balls.

Branch Home, another retailer known for stocking eco-friendly yet design-savvy goods, offers a selection of cork trays, bowls and cutting boards in an array of sizes.

Target offers an attractive cork bath mat.

In home renovation, we're seeing more cork flooring. Warm, quiet and comfortable underfoot, cork floor tiles are available in many patterns and colours at a modest cost. Their resiliency makes them a popular choice for kitchens, bathrooms and family rooms. Check out Ecohaus's selection as well as Jelinek Cork Group.

For some great photographs and history about cork's production and use over the decades, go to the Jelinek's website as well as the Portuguese Cork Association's site.

Carlos Mendonca, won the 2008 REDDOT Design Award for their cork bath collection, which includes geometric laser cut mats, soap dishes and even wash-basins.

"Despite being such a traditional material, cork can be employed in very innovative and unexpected ways," the pair wrote on their web page.

Summer rule No. 1: Keep cool

DecorMoment

Karl Lohnes

metronews.ca/decomoment

Decorated and ventilated properly, a house, apartment or condo can keep cool during the blazing days of summer without the need of having central air. Here are a few practical and decorative ways to keep things cool during the summer:

In your apartment: Install a window air conditioner. A small 10,000-15,000 unit will keep an area of 500-800 square feet cooled down. Use a floor standing fan to re-direct the cool air around the apartment. Check with your building management before purchasing and installing a window air conditioner as they may have regulations to follow.

Decorating ideas: Choose

Left: Using cool colours like white and grey can keep a room looking and feeling cool, but installing a ceiling fan on an upper floor can actually help keep a house cool (right).

white blinds and/or a backing on drapes to reflect the sun's rays, and keep drapes closed when hot sun is pouring in; hang bamboo blinds outside to diffuse the hot sunlight that hits the windows.

In your basement apartment: Since cool air falls, you may not need an air conditioner however basements are often humid. Get a dehumidifier to take the water out of the air and the temperature will feel 5-10 degrees cooler; open windows once the outside temperature have dipped below the temperature inside.

Decorating ideas: Apply a frosted film on windows to create privacy but still allow as much light in as possible. Use an exhaust fan while showering allows steam and humidity to escape.

In your townhouse: If you have central air conditioning, close the vents on the main floor to force more air upstairs. As cold air falls, the lower levels will cool down. Use ceiling fans on upper floors to draw air upwards and keeping the cool air from falling. Use your bathroom exhaust fan on top floors to draw out the hot air and pull cool air up.

Decorating ideas: Decorate using light and airy colours like grey, blue and white on upper floors where it's always warmer; the cooler it looks the cooler you will feel. Keep all south facing blinds and drapes closed during the day when the sun is the hottest. Rid all upper floors of heavy area carpets which can insulate the heat.

In your sprawled house: Use an attic fan to blow out hot air that has collected.

'Cool' things

- Cool air falls; windows are to be opened only once the temperature outside becomes cooler than inside at night; use portable air conditioners to cool hot spots. Use UV film (or blinds) on south facing windows; a tub filled with room temperature water makes for a refreshing dip every few hours.

Install air conditioners on south and east sides of the house; these are the two hottest areas. Plant tall shrubs and trees on the east and west side of the house to help diffuse the hot sun at the beginning and end of the day. Install awnings over the south-facing windows to cut the direct sun. Decorating ideas: Use fabrics like cotton, linen and bamboo on furniture and bedding, tiled floors are cooler to the foot than carpeting.

Karl Lohnes is passionate about good decor and wants to help you have a beautiful home; no matter what your budget or style.

Summertime style: Outdoor havens

Nothing is more relaxing than a breath of fresh air, which is likely the reason why the lines between indoors and out have blurred immensely. More and more homeowners are moving their living rooms outside to well-appointed patios and decks, furnishing these spaces with all the comforts of their favourite indoor gathering spaces.

In fact, research shows homebuilders are now incorporating two- and three-sided outdoor rooms into home plans. Manufacturers, too, are addressing the trend by providing a wide array of products designed for outdoor living, giving homeowners nearly as many choices to decorate their outdoor living rooms as those inside their homes — including furniture, textiles, lighting, grills and even WiFi-enabled outdoor entertainment systems.

"Homeowners are spending as much time and effort on outdoor living projects as they do indoor decorating endeavours," notes Denise Patterson, product manager for Krylon, the nation's leader in spray paint. "With the summer season upon us, now's the time to freshen up outdoor living spaces and make them 'relaxation ready' for the warm months of fun."

One of the easiest and most inexpensive ways to spruce up an outdoor area is by refurbishing existing furniture and other pieces with spray paint. While you want furniture to look stylish, you also want something that is easy to clean and maintain, and holds up against the elements like rain, heat and sunlight. No one wants freshly painted furniture to fade, chip or rust before the season ends.

From wicker furniture and patio tables, to pottery and planters, Krylon's Outdoor Spaces line of spray finishes offers a wide range of durable, yet contemporary colours that can easily help you achieve sophisticated looks with the convenience of spray paint. Because homeowners are looking for more than just basic colours, they're available in several new, vibrant and exciting hues including poppy, ivy, ocean and sunlight.

Once your painting projects are complete, accent your bold colour choices with unique and interesting cushions and throw pillows made from stain- and mildew-resistant fabrics. Also keep in mind, your new furniture colours and coordinating cushions will "pop" and look brighter with the right kind of outdoor lighting. Depending on how you configure your outdoor living space, you can install lighted ceiling fans, environmentally friendly solar accent lighting to surrounding flowerbeds and even use portable lamps designed expressly for exterior use.

And don't forget the entertainment. Outdoor-friendly systems exist for any budget — ranging from WiFi- or satellite-radio-enabled speaker systems for a little mood music, to high-end comprehensive systems that include plasma televisions and surround sound. All are designed to withstand any weather.

Create the perfect patio

As the weather gets nicer, there's nothing better than expanding your living space outdoors. And luckily, it's easy and affordable to create a comfortable and chic outdoor room. Use these quick tips to transform your space.

Simply putting furniture on a deck or patio doesn't create an inviting outdoor living area — instead, be sure to look at the bigger picture.

As you would an interior room, incorporate a theme and colour scheme into your new design.

Arrange the furniture so that it is inviting for you and your guests to socialize.

And, no need to buy new furniture to make your outdoor space look new. Instead, apply a fresh coat of stain or spray paint to your existing wood or metal furniture for a stylish and updated look.

Manufacturers, such as Krylon offer spray products, such as its exterior semi-transparent spray stain and Outdoor Spaces spray paint to make it quick and easy to makeover your patio.

Both are available in the latest colours, and best of all, they dry quickly, and provide superior protection against the outdoor elements.

Once your furniture is finished, add accessories. Layer colour and textures to give the space a pulled-together appearance; incorporate colourful placemats and an interesting centre-piece on your table to set it apart.

NEWS CANADA

Taking a few steps to beautify your patio can pay off in the long run.

High-fashion ambition

Top-earning Victoria's Secret model Doutzen Kroes likes her bread, body and bikini shoots

Doutzen Kroes might not fit the mould of a top model.

She's a jeans-and-T-shirt girl. She likes — and eats — bread. She wasn't discovered in a remote place by a famous scout or photographer. And at 25, she has curves that have kept her off a lot of high-fashion runways.

But somehow, none of that matters.

Kroes ranked No. 5 this year on the Forbes list of top-earning models. She's most recognized as a Victoria's Secret Angel, the brand's top tier of models, a spokeswoman for L'Oréal and the former face of Calvin Klein Eternity.

"My life has always been like I'm in a bubble and it's floating and it goes in the right direction," Kroes says. "I don't want to interrupt it."

It was Kroes, a Dutch native, who got the ball — or bubble — rolling. As a teenager, she saw a magazine photo of a model and she thought to herself, "She has beautiful hair, beautiful makeup, a beautiful dress, and I thought I'd like to look like that one day."

Her sister took photos and Kroes sent them off to a modelling agency in Amsterdam, a place she rarely visited as a self-described "country girl." Kroes' passion until then had been competitive speed skating.

Other than her sister, no one knew about her new high-fashion ambition.

Doutzen Kroes (far right) attends Victoria's Secret Models Share Shopping Secrets Of A Supermodel event last month in Los Angeles with other supermodels.

"I am a totally healthy girl that eats but eats in moderation and I take care of myself"

Supermodel Doutzen Kroes

"I didn't tell anybody that I sent the pictures because I'd be embarrassed if I didn't get the job," she says.

Apparently she didn't need to worry with her long blond hair, blue eyes and Brigitte Bardot look. She relocated to New York within a year.

Kroes has a "modern style," describes L'Oréal's international general manager Vianney Derville, who also says the model is "blessed with an excellent sense of professionalism and a natural elegance."

On most days, you'll still find her in jeans, T-shirt and flat shoes, but she likes stepping it up for a night out. At last month's Costume Institute Gala Benefit at the Metropolitan Museum of Art, Kroes was the date of designer Zac Posen, wearing a princess-worthy blue gown that they collaborated on. For the Cannes Film Festival a few days later, she wore a glamorous Grecian-style gown with a plunging neckline by Roberto Cavalli.

Earlier this week, she presented the popular-vote award at the Council of Fashion Designers of America Hollywood-style awards show.

Kroes is outspoken about her feminine, curvy figure and how it's cost her jobs. She was a panellist for the CFDA's round-table discussion about too-skinny models and says she hasn't done as much runway work as she'd like because she doesn't always fit the sample size.

"I have to work really hard. My body — I have a voluptuous body. I am not one of those skinny girls. I like to enjoy life," she says.

Her shape has served her well when it comes to Victoria's Secret. Still, in the lead-up to the big Victoria's Secret runway show she'll temporarily give up the bread, cheese and chocolate that she loves.

Selling McQueen

In fashion, death makes the cash register ring

KENYA HUNT
Metro World News

Since his suicide death in February, fashion has served up many Alexander McQueen sales and auctions. But are they homages or attempt to cash in?

In the art world it has long been said that an artist isn't truly appreciated until after he or she dies. That's not necessarily the case in fashion where the industry's greatest icons have been celebrated in life and death (Coco Chanel, Christian Dior, and Yves Saint Laurent, for example) but it does seem that death does get the cash registers ringing.

When you look at each sale individually they all seem like poignant tributes to an insanely gifted artist. But put them together and a more cynical writer might be reaching for the phrase "cashing in." Here's a breakdown of some of the many McQueen sales we've gotten wind of these past two months.

MARCH 12

- The super addictive sample-sale website Gilt Groupe has a much-buzzed-about bridal sale that features a few Alexander McQueen dresses. It seems like the perfect way to acquire some of his work after his death.

Thanks to a long stream of auctions and sales, shoppers have had many opportunities to snap up the late McQueen's clothing.

MARCH 29

- Through April 11, Housing Works, the popular chain of thrift shops in New York, hosts a tribute sale with more than 30 items of McQueen's work with proceeds going to an AIDS charity.

APRIL 7

- Gilt hosts an online sample-sale completely devoted to Alexander McQueen, featuring pieces from the previous season.

The prices roughly range from a few hundred to a few thousand U.S. dollars. The touching copy on the site talks about his "legacy of drama, artistry and the spirit of invention."

APRIL 20

- Gilt has another McQueen-related sale, this time with dresses and separates from his secondary line, McQ.

MAY 18

- Women's Wear Daily announces that Isabella Blow's sizable McQueen collection will be auctioned at Christie's in September.

Blow, who was one of McQueen's closest friends, helped give him his start by buying his entire graduation collection and paying him for it in small installments.

Her suicide was a major heartbreak for McQueen. Blow's sisters decided to sell most of her impressive wardrobe to pay off the late fashion editor's debts.

MAY 24

- Yet another McQueen sale on Gilt. The wording again refers to his "legacy" and the fact that his masterful pieces are "sure to be collectors, items."

Lots of tailoring this time around. McQueen fans bulking up their collections have plenty to pick from.

JUNE 4

- British Vogue reports that two dresses from McQueen's a/w '07 collection will go on sale in an auction at Bonhams, in London, later this month.

One dress, which was worn days after the designer's death to the Brit Awards is expected to fetch 12,000 - 18,000 euros.

Humour heart of Rush doc

Forty years in the same rock band and there's not an overdose, trashed hotel room or groupie scandal to speak of?

How on earth would directors Scot McFadyen and Sam Dunn make a film about Rush interesting to those who can't recite the lyrics to 2112? Is there something here beyond a typical rock doc?

The answer, surprisingly, is yes.

The story doesn't start with the Toronto band's first album in 1974, but goes back to its members' upbringing, schooling, and motivation.

It's about three teenagers — one the son of Holocaust survivors, another of Yugoslavian immigrants — who were fiercely committed to music. All of them — singer-bassist-keyboardist Geddy Lee, guitarist Alex Lifeson and drummer Neil Peart knew what they wanted to do in life — rock out. And not in a slacker, excuse-to-avoid-adult-responsibilities way.

Through rare early footage of Rush playing high schools to "over-reaching" sessions in the studio and more current live clips, one sees that Rush never wavered from this pursuit of musical excellence. The trio's progressive hard rock and cerebral lyrics with words you'd sometimes have to look up won millions of dedicated fans.

For the film, Trent Reznor, Billy Corgan, Jack Black, Foo Fighters' Taylor Hawkins, Metallica's Kirk Hammett and others gladly spoke of their love for the band, often quoting musical and lyrical passages. Black declares the members "not even human" at one point. But despite the seriousness of Rush's music and work ethic, the film is filled with humour. The band members crack joke through-out, from their so-called Down The Tubes tour early in their career to their fashion choices (i.e. Lee's Asian robe phase). It's the funny stuff that gives a glimpse into their personalities, how they have stayed together all this time, and why Beyond The Lighted Stage is not just a story about musicians.

Lil Jon Crunks up the volume

About five years ago, Lil Jon had a rocking vision for his next album, Crunk Rock.

The disc is still called that — but don't expect to hear endless electric guitar riffs over thumping drums.

Jon says the new album, out this week, went through many phases. Instead of producing the album himself, he recruited the likes of David Guetta, Stephen Marley, Drumma Boy and Dr. Luke. That added a new sound to the CD — including Euro-flavoured dance grooves and what he calls Bollyfunk.

genre?

A We all grew up on rock music. In the '80s, I remember the radio stations would play everything from rock to rap. And even if you go back to Run DMC, they said, "I'm the king of rock" because rock was the hardest stuff. When you put the guitars on your music it makes it a little bit more harder (and) I think that's part of it. And then we all wanted to be rock stars in the early days. We wanted to be rap stars, but the rock stars had the crazy lifestyle. And for me, it was the energy of rock music. I grew up on punk music, too. I was into the Ramones, Bad Brains, all of that, when I was in high school.

Q You usually produce your own albums, so was it hard to have some of that control in another's hands?

A It was kind of way easier, because everybody I worked with knew my music and knew my production and they gave me a lot of respect. And we just kind of collaborated until we both got what we liked.

Q Lil Wayne's dabbled in rock music, and a while back Nelly mentioned doing a rock album. Why do think rappers are so interested in the rock

Q Do you see more dance and hip-hop collaborations in the future?

A I think that's the future of music right now — DJs like Guetta and Tiesto collaborating with hip-hop artists, basically starting a new form of music. ... Right now house music is the biggest. And I see a lot more collaborations with the dance guys and the hip-hop guys.

Rockers Tokyo Police Club soldier on

CAM LINDSAY
for Metro Canada

There's a fine line between buzz and hype. No band knows this better than Tokyo Police Club.

After taking the indie rock community by storm in 2006 with their debut EP, A Lesson In Crime, the Newmarket-bred/Toronto-based four-piece found themselves trying to battle the overwhelming hype that came with their first full-length with 2008's Elephant Shell.

Though it was a solid album, the band's decision to subdue the frenetic nature of their EP and ripen their songwriting skills caught many people off guard. "Going into Elephant Shell, we had never made a full record and as such had no idea how much time it would take to write and record one," admits singer/bassist David Monks. "Plus we had sparse time between tours and three weeks to make the record. We all put a higher price on time off now. The tours are still gonna be there."

The hectic experience prepared the band for when it came time to make their second album with producer Rob Schnapf (Elliott Smith, Beck). Titled Champ, Monks says the pressure was off now, especially because they had retired from their "buzz band" tenure.

"Champ was fun. We just did whatever felt good and didn't worry about things. When we were writing it we were at home and there wasn't all of this anticipation. There wasn't a build up with this album, which left us in a good headspace. I think we all consider Elephant Shell to be our sophomore record, so with this one there wasn't any of the 'second record' stress."

Listeners may not hear a monumental leap in the band's sound on Champ, but the extra time they took to make cleared up any confusion there may have been about the type of music Tokyo Police Club were making.

"The whole writing process of Champ was less self-aware than Elephant Shell," explains Monks. "We felt like we didn't have a sound we needed to fit into. With Elephant Shell, I think we fell back on that."

Lil Jon's album Crunk Rock is out this week.

John Oliver, correspondent on The Daily Show with Jon Stewart, attends the soccer Send Off Series Match between the U.S. and Czech Republic in East Hartford, Conn. last month.

South Africa trip a dream for Daily Show soccer fan

John Oliver's job on The Daily Show is giving him an English soccer fan's dream: the chance to attend the World Cup — and perhaps more important — taunt the Americans before they take on his national team.

Oliver and producer Tim Greenberg left for South Africa earlier this week to file reports for Jon Stewart's Comedy Central show.

Oliver, a soccer fanatic from Birmingham, England, left behind one earlier-filmed report, where he visited the American soccer team before their World Cup opening match with England this week-end. Oliver's report airs Thursday.

"It was a free exchange of opinions as to how the England game would go," Oliver said. "You can probably imagine how that degenerated."

The South African visit is the show's fourth international trip in four summers. Rob Riggle went to Iraq in 2007 and to China for the 2008 Olympics, and Jason Jones went to Iran last year. This year's trip was encouraged by Stewart, a former college soccer player.

Oliver, 32, has become an increasingly valuable member of The Daily Show team during his four years on the job, giving an outsider's often incredulous view of how his host country operates.

There is a buzz around it, though, and it's a gem that the locals don't really want the rest of the city to know about, so keep this to yourself.

It's a great place to grab a gourmet burger and a white-capped beverage. The combinations of flavours on their burgers are irresistible. I ordered the Chez Lucien burger ($10) topped with bacon, cream cheese and mushrooms. The patty was nicely grilled, a touch dry, but the richness from the toppings covered any sins. The fries had a good color and paired well with the ranch-flavoured dipping sauce, but the salad on the side was naked without dressing. If you like some heat, the Frida and Diego burger ($10) was a brilliant alliance of jalapeño, Monterey Jack cheese and fried onions.

Bail for Lindsay doubles after SCRAM violation

AND WORK OFFERS DISAPPEAR Lindsay Lohan's SCRAM alcohol-monitoring bracelet got her in trouble Tuesday with a judge who doubled the actress' bail to $200,000.

Los Angeles Superior Court Judge Marsha Revel determined Lohan violated the terms of her release after a closed-door meeting with the actress' attorney and a prosecutor. Revel did not detail the violation, but said her decision was made after receiving "results" issued by a court-ordered alcohol monitor.

District Attorney's spokeswoman Shiara Davila-Morales said it was an "alcohol-related violation," but did not have further details.

A source familiar with Lohan's case told The Associated Press that the violation was reported ed after the Mean Girls star appeared at the MTV Movie Awards on Sunday night.

Lohan was not present in court Tuesday, but several denials of wrongdoing were posted on the actress' Twitter account shortly before and after the hastily called hearing.

Bodyguard sues Britney for sexual harassment

MY, HOW THE SEXY HAVE FALL-EN A former bodyguard for Britney Spears is suing the pop singer for sexual harassment, claiming that her walking around naked in front of him made for an unpleasant work environment, according to Hollyscoop. "She was always giving him the come on and he felt if he didn't reciprocate he could lose his job. He finally handed in his notice last week," a friend of Fernando Flores, the former employee, says. "Working for Britney is tough. She's a nightmare to deal with and her emotions are totally out of control. She runs around the house naked and yelling at staff."

Rihanna talks relationships

AND NOT JUST WITH MADONNA'S STYLE CIRCA 1986 Rihanna is opening up about her love life, including how the violent end to her relationship with Chris Brown made her feel. "A year ago, I was very confused. Because he was my best friend," she tells Elle magazine. "All of a sudden, one night changed our whole lives—not only our friendship, but our lives. I wanted to wake up one day and just not have that pain anymore. I wanted to be with him again or get over him." As for how she's doing now, Rihanna credits her current boyfriend, L.A. Dodgers outfielder Matt Kemp, for staying balanced. "I have a boyfriend. I'm so happy," she says. "I have such a chaotic life, but at the end of the day, that is just my peace. It keeps me sane, really."

Maid allegedly steals $100K worth of jewelry from Food Network star

THE NEWS HIT HER LIKE A FROZEN HAM TO THE HEAD Police say a housekeeper stole and tried to pawn thousands of dollars worth of jewelry belonging to Food Network star and celebrity chef Paula Deen.

Savannah-Chatham police tell the Savannah Morning News they went to Deen's Wilmington Island home on May 3 on a report of about $100,000 worth of men's and women's jewelry that had vanished within the past year.

Deen's husband Michael Anthony Groover told police the couple had caught housekeeper 47-year-old Mary Alice White with some jewelry and had fired her.

Authorities charged White on May 5 with theft. They say she was caught trying to pawn a pair of $18,000 earrings at a Savannah pawnshop.
